TAHITI DIVE SITES

The Arue faults

Located on the east coast of Tahiti, the dive site is a beautiful undersea cave at the depth of around 100 feet home to a army of soldierfish. A wall starts at around 15 feet where reef fish, crayfish. Considered as one of the more attractive dives on the east coast of the island.

The Spring

Named after a spring of fresh water emerging from the depths of the ocean. The source emerges from 15 – 20 feet below the surface. It is easily visible through the column of bubbles of water that escapes. It is quite possible to encounter sharks or at night, napoleon fish.

From both sides of the spring range are beautiful valleys that are parallel to the coast. These valleys are rich in marine life. Many turtles come and « play » with the divers.

The White Valley

An exceptionally beautiful dive for its marine fauna. Blacktip sharks, Lemon sharks and Grey sharks. Schools of silver jackfish, triggerfish and a myriad fish species abound. Highly recommended for a drift dive.

Whale and Dolphin watching

Tahiti plays hosts to yearly whale migration. Humpback whales come yearly from July—October to mate or give birth before returning to the South pole. In the comfort of our covered boats and in the hands of experienced diving instructors onboard, we offer the best conditions for a safe approach with a deep respect for the animals. Dolphins, however, can be seen all year round.
